Nathan Courtney to Serve in Harrison, Scott and Bourbon Counties

Lexington, KY – Nathan Courtney, a Loan Officer with Central Kentucky Ag Credit, will serve the association in Harrison, Scott, and Bourbon Counties. He has already assumed his expanded duties, after having served with Ag Credit in the association's Lexington Branch.

Ag Credit's President, Jim Caldwell, said Nathan will also continue to work with member-borrowers that he served through the Lexington Branch.

Nathan has been a professional rural loan specialist for the past six years as an Ag Credit Loan Officer and with other branches of the Farm Credit System. He is a graduate of Georgetown College, where he earned his B.S. Degree, with a major in Business Management and a minor in Communications.

Nathan is also an athlete and was a pitcher and outfielder for the Georgetown Baseball Team during his college career. Other educational accomplishments include Nathan's sports scholarship at Georgetown College, completion of the Kentucky Farm Bureau leadership enhancement program (LEAD), and he is a graduate of the Key Accounts Program at Purdue University in West Lafayette, IN.

Nathan owns a 100-acre farm near Cynthiana and also farms with his father on the 1,500-acre family operation. The Courtney's are Harrison County natives who produce tobacco and raise commercial cattle. Nathan is the son of Greg and Pam Courtney. He is a member of the Harrison County Farm Bureau and the Harrison County Beef Producers Association.

Nathan and his wife, the former Mandy Mattox of Harrison County, currently reside near Cynthiana. Nathan has been a lifelong member of Mt. Carmel Baptist Church in Williamstown. Nathan and Mandy are parents of one daughter, Lucy Kate.
